

Decisions for Mother/Son Day

I need your help to determine what we will do!

The last few years the mother/son event has been bowling in Bad Axe at a cost of $15 per participant, and after chatting with the HSC we thought it may be fun to try something new, something more cost effective, and something closer to home.

I have a few ideas, but would LOVE some input. I will briefly explain the ideas and then if you could rank them from 1 to 4 (1 being your favorite) and maybe even make a note of activities you would like paired together. I am thinking we may be able to combine a few of the ideas and do two activities or maybe you just prefer one, so I would love that input. Once we figure out what we want to do, then I can work on securing locations and dates.

- A. Movie afternoon at the Harbor Beach Theatre. Rent the theatre for our own Saturday matinee, and try to choose a movie that would appeal to the K-8 age group. I know my 5-year-old and 13-year-old both love Angry Birds 2, so maybe something like that? Or open to suggestions:_____
- B. Game Night. We could just have different card games and board games set up to play. Maybe even set up some tournaments for those who love a competition? We could do this right at the school or the community house depending on if we combine it with something else.
- C. Games in the Gym at the Community House. Mother versus son dodge ball, minute to win it types of games, mother/son relay teams (don't worry, I would set it up to go easy on the moms).
- D. A non-road Road Rally in town. I know so many of us have had fun with the road rally, maybe it would be fun to do something similar with the boys when the weather gets a little nicer. It would be on foot and in town.

Preference on pairing activities? YES or NO

If yes, which ones?

One last question. Would you prefer to have a pizza party with the event, or would you prefer to eat on your own and maybe have the time of the event set up so that you could go on a date (or group date) with your son to lunch/dinner ?

Pizza Party

Eat on our own
